problbition in the States that have adopted alive. it, finds that in Kansas the consumption of liquor has decreased 25 per cent., but it is very evident that it has largely increased the vices of deception, lying, apyling and tattling. The sale of liquor has increased in Iows. The luternal revenue figures show this. The treuble with the Iowa law is ln the means previded for his enforcement. In Kansas imprisonment is the absolute accompaniment of the fine imposed for a conviction upon even a first offense. In Iowa the prohibition laws thus far have only had the effect of giving greater license to llquor selling, without receiving any revenue from such sale. In Michigan they Under it the number of saloons has become less he went to bed to have it washed. reduced. Indiane le beginning to look toward a local option law, but as yet has done nothing. Illiaois has a number of localoption countle, nearly all democratic. Ohlo has settled down to a high license law. Missouri is nearly ready for a localoption law. Minnesota has iccal-option. "The temperance agitation in the South le merely a white man's movement for the better control of the negroes. The opinion of the best men with whom I have talked is that the temperence question can be best eettled hy the adoption of the high license law, with a local-option feature. It shall be for each community to say whether liquor shall be sold or not in its locality, and if sold it should be made to pay a revenue. The tax should be large enough to keep the trade in the hands of responsible people, who will themselves form an ective pclice against lrregular selling without license."

THE democretic entrees so far in the Kentucky Congressional races are Laffson in the 23: Montgomery in the 4th; Breckinridge in the 7th; Gov. SENATOR COLQUITT, of Georgia, is the leader of the prohibition movement in the South and is enthuelastic enough to pre dict that the entire continent will be dedicated to sobriety within ten years. On the other hand the observant editor of the New York Sun, Mr. Dana, says "prohibition exiets in the mind only. As a system it can at $13, and tickets good for thirteen days. not be cetablished, at least now, and its advocates must be regarded more as the rum." You pays your money and you takes your choice.

THE faith cure has been put to a serious test in Jereey City. A woman who weighed 375 pounds end had taken anti-fat hy the quart and exhanated all the other remedies to reduce her voluptuoueness, sought the prayers of the good people of the "Mt. Zion Sanctuary" and uniting her petitlona with theirs, she was soon reduced to 300 pounds. Lanon of all kinds seems to be demoralized in St. Louis, and ready to take any advantage it can of its employer. Last year when the city was entertaining thousands of gueste, the street car drivers struck, to the great inconvenience and annoyance of everybody, and now, when the same city is full of Knights Templar and other guests, the waiters at the hotels go on a strike, It looked for awhile like the Knights would go hungry, but the demands of the strikers were complied with and business resumed.

THE cities of the State are not bidding for the Colored Normal School with that liberality and avidity that might charecterize them. In fact they are not bidding at $100,000 a year. It evidently pays just all. Lexlog on had the matter before its about that much more than his Big Hopes and Miss Mary Peyton have gone to Texas frowned and immediately gave orders for council, but that body decided to spend all of the Presidency ever will. its spare cash on its local colored population and let the Normal School seek other or of Virginia. A GREAT HIGHWAY.

THE NATIONAL ROAD LAID OUT NEARLY SEVENTY YEARS AGO.

Interesting Reminiscences in Connection with the Once Popular Thoroughfare. Historic Associations-Noted Passeagers Over the Road.

that such a structure was ever built.

Away back in 1818 there arose serious apprehension that the growth of the west would cause disaffected politicians to want a different capital-"a western union"-and during Monroe's administration congress, under the advocacy of Heary Clay, "Tom" Benton, Gen. Lewis Cass, Thomas Ewing and Andrew Stewart, made appropriations from the national treasury, and the work was vigorously executed. Begluning at Cumberland mountain, it extended across Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio and Indiana westward. The design was to connect the national capital with St. Louis.

five degrees, was made thirty-five feet wide, and joy she said: and macadamized. The under part was chiefly of stone, placed on edge, as is now the ease in cities, and covered with pieces is coming to-morrow." that would go through an inch and a half ring. The nationni road was free to all. It was main ained by the general government for a dozen years, but in 1830, "through defercuce to Gen. Jackson's Idea of state sovercignty," It was turned over to the states through which it was built.

A POPULAR THOROUGHEARE. Much interesting remlaiscence might be given of this great thoroughfure and its wars. In 1837, when war was threatened between this country and France, there was such suspicion of symp , thy between the French in Louisiana and the enemy that a quick mail route was estailished via this road, and the Mississippi river contracts were let with the requirement of speed to average ten miles per hour. The entire highway was laid off into sections, three boys and nine horses being required for sixty-three miles, and the time given for the trip was six hours and eighteen minutes.

Whether legal or not, the national road was a popular thoroughfare. There was soon as high as 150 "great Conestoga six-horse teams" per day. That is the same number as the railroad trains that pass over the Pennsylvania railroad now daily to and from Jersey City. There were four or five four-horse mail and passenger coaches each way daily.

Pre il nts frequented this highway, and on set de masions men were posted at hilltops by the road wave their red bandanas as a signal of a conch for the distinguished travelers. The people would assemble and render both vocal and instrumental music.

Much of the national road is still in good condition, and its many historic associations are enhanced by modern progress. While the old cast from posts yet remain to tell of distances to places, etc., telegraph wires are abundant, and there is a combination of things ancient and modern which give to travelers by the old road much of rare in-

Of noted passengers over this road there are recorded the names of James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler, Dick Johnson (vice-president under Tyler), Jumes K. Polk, Santa Anna and the Macquis de Lafayette.

CHAT WITH POLK'S WIDOW. James K. Polk! How the name stands out in the list! To be assured about the stories told on the subject I called on the venerable Mrs. Polk. At my greeting she said she was feeble, but had never in the several years it liad been my fortune to know her appeared quite so bright, so graceful and so elegant. "Ah, yes; I have often been over the 'great national road,' as it was called, and it revives many pleasant reminiscences. Friends used to ask me if I were not fatigued in making those trips, but I would tell them that hi those days I knew not the sensation of being tired. Why, we didn't travel in the ordinary stage coaches of that day. True, we did travel in profic couringes, but gentlemen could make arrangements to travel exclusively, and would stop over at night. Mr. Polk was fourteen years successively in congress, and we often journoyed that way; not always. We went to Washington twice in in our private entrings. Our route would be down the Cuatherland to the Ohio, and up that to Wheeling, and thence across by the national road to Cumberland, Md. The ears ran from thence to Baltlmore. When Mr. Polk was elected president we went that way and changed cars ut the Relay house, the junction of that road and the one leading from Baltimore to Washington. There was a great crowd there and he made a speech, What magniticent scenery on that thoroughfare across the Allegheny mountains! I had an expert nee on our journey that often gave amusement to our friends. Our team ran away, and we might have been much more unfortunate, but one of our horses fell and the driver checked the others. But the carriago was ujest. Dr. Linu, a senator from Missonci, was especially attentive to me. Mr. Polk and others had emerged from the curriage, and Dr. Linn proposed to help me, and he asked me to put my foot on lils hand. 1 did so, and he helped me gracefully in that wny. He was a courily gentleman."-Nashville American.

Trunsfusion of Blood. A lawyer, it seems, has come to the aid of the medical fraternity, judging from the report of what are described as successful experiments carried on before professors of the Michigan State university medical department, with an instrument for the transfusion of blood directly from one animal or person into another. A correspondent declares that it bids fair to overcome the only heretofore existing obstacle to the success of this operation—the clotting of blood, and dangers following from injection of such clots. In the experiments, a slek sheep was placed at one end of the lustrument and a healthy one at the other, and a very visible change for the better was the result in the sick one. The other was then allowed to bleed as leng as blood would flow, and was resuscitated by blood taken from a calf. The inventor is said to have been a successful lawyer, whem ill health compelled to abandon his profession.—Boston Transcript.

Love Making in a Pickwickian Sense. One peculiarity of the Mexicans I neglected to mention. If they meet a pretty woman on the street, although an entire stranger, they will say to her: "You are so sweet! so pretty! I love you!" No offense is meant, and the fady is not expected to notice it. Such a compliment was paid a pretty Boston girl in Mexico city, and she astonished her plainspoken admirer by taking her parasol to him.

Hocking valley, facing the fair win of Must-ingum. The Sheridan home is not preten-tious. It is a story and a half cottage, which nestles in the midst of tall cedars and forest oaks. There is a wide yard and a long walk of native stones which leads to the door. There was a delicious coolness under the trees and a delightful view. No one was in sight, and we sat on the porch in the oldfashioned rockers, which invite company, The door was open and disclosed a hall which was neatly furnished. Mementoes of his experience when he was fighting the Indians in Oregon and more of his experience in the rebellion were plenty and suggestive. An old lady in a black rilk dress and black lace cap came out and warmly welcomed us. "A gentleman who wants to see the mother of Gen. Sherldan,' was the manner of my introduction. The eld lady shook my hand with a warmth, which would have done rredit to a woman of 25, and then she joined us on the porch for a chat. For a woman of 87 she is remarkably strong and elear in conversation. In her face, which is not at all emaciated, can be traced a resem-Idance to her fathous son. "But he comes every year!" "Oh, yes," und again the old lady laughed and smiled as she said.

"He was here a year ago and stayed over night. I didn't know he was coming, and was up to see a neighbor about some fusiness, When I started home I met him on the road. He came running up to me and said: 'Why, mother, where invo you been? I was afraid something had happened to you."

"He was a good boy and healthy, was he not, Mrs. Sheridan?" asked Capt. Greiner, "Yes, in bod. He was never sick. He never had time to be sick. He was an active lad, and so fond of horses. I know when he lived in town Phillie was always about the stage horses when they would come in. He would watch till they were unhitched, and then watch his chance to take them to water. One day his father caught him and gave him a good whipping. It was the hardest whipping the lad ever got, and I felt very ladly about it. I told father it was hardly right, but he said it would do I'lill good, and I guess it did. He was hurt once by a wild colt which threw him up by Dean's one day. He was badly hurt inside, but a breaklag out saved his life. That was when he was home from West Peint,"

"Where was he when the war commenced?" "In Oregon. I didn't see him for a long tian then.

"But you heard from him often?" "O, yes; and when the mail would come I would go out in the yard, afraid to see the letters or paper lest I should hear that some of my boys were killed or hurt." "But the news from them was always "Yes, indeed;" and the old lady laughed with pride as she remembered the tillings of those momentous days which made her "Phil-lie" the leader of the American armies. Talking of him, she upologized the least lit for being so fond: "You can excuse up old mother for being so proud of her son. He has always been good to me,"-Cor. Cincinnati Times-

A Field Long Neglected. Every country physician should have a be regarded as a matter of laferlor dignity to lind remedies for the diseases of the animal creation. Kaolin as an Article of Food, with Yellow Marl for Dessert-A Diet Which Prevents Dyspepsia and Lung Troubles.

It is not generally known, but is true, that there exists not far from this city a race of white people called "Sandhillers," who are veritable clay eaters. This morning, hi company with a young physician of this city, your correspondent was enjoying a jaunt lato plue groves which skirt the eastern confines of Columbia, and we were proceeding toward the sandhills when we were accested by an aged mendicant, who, thrusting an old greasy piece of paper into my unwilling hand, exclaimed pitconsly: "For God's sake, read it, gentlemen." My friend, who was prejudiced against beggars in general and "Sandhillers" in particular, was for sternly rebuking the old man, when something peculiarly touching in the applicant's look arrested that uncharitable purpose and lunpelled him to heed the whisperings of his nobler nature and to relieve the distress of the poor wretch. I, too, could not restrain a Christain impulse, and bestowing what alms I could afford I glanced at the paper which had been forced into my land. This was what it contained: To ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: This cor-

The Reporter as an Interviewer. A reporter, in the course of his diurnal and nocturnal perambulations, runs up against a vast deal of human nature of one sort and another. The modern fashion of publishing a budget of miniature interviews every day, quoting remarks that probably the speaker hal not the remotest idea were going into print, furnishes many illustrations. Hardly a day goes by hut what somobody gets mad and says he never said what he is quoted as saying. He demands a correction, and generally gets it. But he doesn't deserve it, and he knows it. The trouble is, not that he did not say what was printed, but that he did not want everybody to know that he said it. And so he charges it all up to the reporter and makes out that he deliberately falsified the returns. If the reporter was guilty of one-half the primes that are credited to him he would be a most monstrous monster. - Pioneer Press "Listener."

INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from Indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pilis. These Pills contain no calomel or other polsouans drug, act directly on the digestive and assindative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 30 years, and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They

me of Dyspepsia when nil other remedle. failed, and their occasional use has kept me lu a healthy condition ever since." L. N. Smith, Utien, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills, for Liver iroubles and Indigestion, a good many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action." Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After unich suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdelt, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced lu flesh, and very much debilltated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's I'ills. 1 did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I
